Huggins and Griff Teams Battle Till Moon Comes Up

Yankees Win First, 6 to 4, and Drop Second of Long Drawn Out Contests by 11 Win First Game, 4 to 2, and to 5; Peck Continues His Batting Streak

Two ball games were played at the Polo Grounds yesterday. But six could have been staged in the time the Yankees and the Senators consumed in splitting a double header. In the past two days these teams have spent enough time in the park under Coogan's Bluff to have a pretty good idea of their surroundings.

Beginning right after luncheon, the Beginning right after interest, the nires battled until Nick Altrock noticed that the moon was up, and they quit in time to get ready for to-morrow's engagement. In checking up, it was found that New York had won the first game, 6 to 4, and that Washing-ten took the second by a score of 11

So many players took part in the first clash that it appeared as though Clark Griffith was trying to crush his opponents with weight of numbers alone. He had every member of his squad out on the green and had that able lieutenant, Nick Altrock, paging them every five minutes. Toward the end the fans didn't know who was who except that those in white were New Yorkers and those in gray the enemy.

Perk Continues Streak Peck Continues Streak

Two things stood out in the day's sings. Peck hit safely in both consts and ran his string of hitting fely in consecutive games to twenty.

The spectators thok great delight in ais and appeared to be more anxious an Peck himself that he should keep at the gard work.

than Peck himself that he should keep up the good work.

The other feature which the patrons will recall and talk over in their review of the game is the comedy of Nick Altrock, the humorous Washing-tenlan, whose antics on the side lines kept the fans in an uproar. Nick made an otherwise monotonous day pleasant fee all present.

Tankees was not due so much to meritorious ability as it was to poor playing on the part of the visitors. Picinich failed miserably on a pop foul of Hannah's, and the locals broke loose immediately afterward and put the game on ice. In this respect the Yankees are doing well. They pass up few opportunities such as this to grab a game. Schneider and Craft opposed each other at the beginning of hostilities in the first game. Pete insisted on firstings with death by passing the first man up in every inning. For four innings he got by without any damage resulting, although he had several narrow escapes. But the law of chance beat him to it in the fifth.

He started with his usual pass to

He shoved in a fast one, then, and Sam Rice greeted it with a slam to centre for two bases, scoring Judge and Foster. minous again for the locals, Nelson was waved out and Bob Shawkey was rushed in. Bob did his part by holding the Griffmen safely until the end.

The Yanks were the first to tally in this contest. Pipp singled to right after Lewis had grounded out to Foster. Pratt hit to the same spot for another bingle. Ping Bodie shot onesinto right for two bases. Pipp scoring and Pratt resching third. Hannah's bounder to short brought Pratt across.

In the sixth Pipp again started things by drawing a pass. An inventory of runs scored in games would probably show that the majority of them begin in just this way. A pass for an opener is an ill omen for the pitcher. Pratt also walked, and both runners moved up a base on Bodie's out. Picinich dropped Hannah's foul, giving him a life, and then McBride booted the Yankee catcher's grasser, allowing Pipp to score. Nelson crossed everybody by whaling to centre for two bases, driving in two more runs. Whitehouse took up the pitching and got Vick, but Peck came through with a hit that bumped the left field wall, scoring Nelson. Baker flied to right.

Russell began the pitching in the second, but Clark Griffith's clan have evidently got through with trying to battle the Yankees along on even terms and taking a chance on winning late in the game. They salted the ball game in the first inning by hitting the ball to every corner of the lot for a total of eight runs. And when the locals showed a tendency to score runs they added more to the total, so as to always be five in front. Oh, no! No chances on that second ball game for them.

In the initial frame Foster and Milan hit safely with one down. Rice flied to Peck. Menosky then hit into the right field stands, cleaning the bases, and Gharrity, Shanks and Janvin singled. Peck threw in an error for good measure, and Vick helped the good work along with a wild heave. Bob McGraw was called in and worked until the last inning, when O'Doul took the mound and finished the game. Except in the third, when the Hugmen scored three runs and showed pozsibilities of overcoming the top-heavy handicap, the crowd spent the rest of the afternoon in watching old Nick perform his coaching duties around first in his own inimitable way.

In the third Peck got his two-bagger, which brought his record forward and pleased the patrons. Lewis, Pipp and Bodie also got hits, the result being three markers.

Slaughter Braves by 15 to 3 in the Second

The Brooklyn Dodgers hopped back nto the first division of the National League standing when they trounced the Boston Braves in a double-header at Ebbets Field yesterday. The 15,000 spectators saw un interesting battle in the first game, which Brooklyn won by 4 to 2 with a crushing seventh inning rally. However, the second game developed into a farce, as the Flatbush Fusileers collected their fifteen runs in four innings, while Boston made three in nine frames. Chicago and Brooklyn are now deadlocked for fourth place in the league race, with thirty-four victories and thirty-one defeats each.

Larry Cheney, the erstwhile Dodger pitcher, was given an opportunity to face his old mates in the second game, and the southpaw was driven off the mound. However, the fault did not lie entirely in his poor control and lie entirely in his poor control and ineffective curves for the entire Boston team fielded like schoolboys, which helped to put Cheney in a hole and caused his retirement in less than one inning. Six runs had pattered over the plate in the first inning when Scott went to Cheney's rescue, to be greeted by a single by Mitchell, which brought in two more runs.

Prior to the seventh inning Keating had the Dod-gers tamed with four scattered hits. He lost his effectiveness in the seventh, with the result that four hits were bunched for three runs and two more safeties gave Brooklyn another run in the eighth and a two run lead. Konetchy came through with two time-ly sacrifice flies during these two frames.

Boston collected eleven hits from Jeff Pfeffer, scoring two runs, one of which was registered on two successive errors by Konetchy and Ward in the first inning. Thereafter the giant Dodger moundsman was never seriously in trouble, although Boston got men on the bases in a majority of the innings.

Tigers Bunch Hits And Triumph Over White Sox by 6-3

CHICAGO, July 5 .- Detroit staged a rally in the fourth inning to-day and by bunching hits, one of which was a triple by Pitcher Dauss, with a sacrifice, an error, and a successful squeeze play made enough runs to defeat Chicago. The score was 6 to 3.

Dauss twirled a good game and was given good support in the pinches, three double plays stopping the locals when they threatened.

I've watched them when the fickle crowd Arose to give the victor cheers, The haunted look within their eyes That turned back through the vanished years; The flame that leaped to sudden glou To fade within their sullen stare, As if they, too, had come to know How soon the laurel withers there.

I've watched them as their burning eyes Saw ghosts again from yesterday, Where some new winner reaped the prize Which they had known along the way;

The Next One

We have a suggestion to make in regard to the next heavyweight championship.

It is that the two boxers start their training a year ahead and charge 50 cents admission in place of a quarter. This should help just a triffe, anyway. Willard and Demprey were both very unbusinessilkie in their recent jamboree. It never occurred to either through their training period to charge spectators two bits each to see them eat. This was an oversight that will very likely never happen again.

Defying Detractors

It pains us very much to hear people say that Willard and Dempsey er-commarcialized their escapade, episode or exchange of wallops. The sin the case fail to bear out this contention. So far as we can round up the facts in the case Peck's flurry is unique. Most league leaders at this stage of affairs are generally old members of the ,300 Club.

Peck's amazing ascent along the old Ash Furniture Circuit this season has lifted him far above all rival shortstops. He has always been a Totals ... Last season, against weak pitching, Peck was far below .300. This season, against fine pitching, he is far above it. Which is merely another of the quaint twists that help make baseball what it is.

Coming Events

The official date has not yet been set wherein the city of Cincinnati will present Owner Baker of the Phillies a loving cup for canning Pat

We hear, however, that the presentation will take place late this month or early in August. More anon.

Weird Game Falls to Lot Of Quaker Fans

McGraw's Nine Slugs Ball Just a Bit Harder Than Minions of Coombs

PHILADELPHIA, July 5 .- McGraw's Giants staggered to victory through one of those old-fashioned slugging bees that reminded of rounders of cricket. The score was 10 to 8.

It was a thrilling if ignoble battle

It was a thrilling if ignoble battle that used up great chunks of the afternoon's daylight and damaged the landscape of the renowned "cigar box" to which Jack Coombs' Phillies have been sentenced for life. It was a slambang, rip-snorting, busting battle in which it was almost a shame to recognize a single, so profuse were doubles and triples and home runs and the like. The most reckless turf follower would have hesitated long about hazarding a nickel on the ultimate issue before the very last out, so weird, uncertain and tricky did the score ebb and flow. It is true New York was never headed, but twice the Phillies knotted the count and they were often just on the eve of putting over the knockout wallop.

Our own Little Napoleon spent an uncomfortable afternoon and by the time it was all over had just about squandered all his pitching reserves. No less than a full quartet of Giant boxmen performed more or less gloriously at one time or another. It felt, finally, to Ferdie Schupp, who himself has been a more or less unreliable commodity all season, to save the fat from the fire.

Newark Wins Pitchers' Battle From Jersey City

Newark scored another victory over Jersey City in the fourth game of their series at West Side Park yesterday, by a score of 2 to 0. Hits were few on each side, as Newark collected four, while the Skeeters had one less. Stryker, the ex-Giant, pitched effectively throughout, although three errors were made by his mates. Zellars opened on the mound for Jersey City, but was unsteady and gave way to Hudgins.
